The nomination is regarded as a combetween conflicting interests, in which the Southern Senators were regarded here with unbounded satisfaction by the leading men of both parties.

Mr. Faller is in every respect fitted to fill the high office to which he has been mominated. Melville Weston Fuller was form in Augusta, Maine, on February II, ISEA. His father was Frederick A. Fuller, lis mother Catharine Martin, daughter of Chief Justice Natham Weston. Melville was fitted for college in Augusta and graduated at Bowdoin in the class of ISEA, his classmate being E. Phelps, our minister to England. Mr. uller, after leaving college, began the ulty of the law at Bangor.

After attending lectures in the law partment of Harvard University, he gant the practice of his profession in gust in ISSA. While waiting for elist he acted as editor of the Age and this spurs in journalism. Feeling his true field of work was the law realizing that his native city did not at the need of, Mr. Fuller came West believed that provided that the mensure and many and the special provided that period of the internal revenue law, into the catagory of being in favor of free whisky and free tobacco, he made a great mistake. The proposition to repeal the tax on whisky was to remit the part the of his profession in gust in ISSA. While waiting for elist he acted as editor of the Age and this spurs in journalism. Feeling his true field of work was the law realizing that his native city did not a that scope for effort which he in need of, Mr. Fuller came West to will be a first of the acted as elicitor of the Age and the profession of the statesman was to see to it that the laboring men of other country should have a great deal higher wages than the laboring men of other countries.

He was a delegate to the Demo National conventions of 1864, 1872 nd 1880. In 1860, he was selected 1876 and 1880. In 1860, he was seriected by the citizens to deliver the address of welcome to Stephen A. Douglass. In 1858 Mr. Fuller married Calista O. Reynolds, and after her decease, Mary Ellen, daughter of the distinguished banker, William E. Coolbaugh. He has eight daughter.

In his practice in the Supreme Court of the United States Mr. Fuller has repeatedly come in contact, both as a colpeatedly come in contact, both as a colleague and as opponent, with Messrs. Edmund, Thurman, Hoadly, Ingersoll and other admitted noted lawyers, and has never failed to hold his own against the greatest of them. He is familiar with the decisions of that court and well informed on the history of our country, and especially on constitutional questions. Not content with the vast an ount of reading and writing which of necessity results from the active pracece sity results from the active prac-ce of his profession, Mr. Fuller does a immense amount of miscellaneous reading and considerable writing by way of recre-tion. He is an omniverous reader, resembles Macauley in his liking for a good novel, as well as in the swiftness with which he grasps the con-tents of a book and the tenacity with nouncement that, for some moments, he could utter nothing more than an exclamation of surprise. He requested that he be not pressed for an extended interview, saying that he was in no condition to talk on the subject as the nomination had come so unexpectedly. He, however, stated that he would not decline the nomination.

Mr. Beck spoke against the bill. He said it was a bill for trusts, pools, combinations and exclusive rights to some men. The object of the bill was to build up a monopoly and to give to the publishers of the four great publishing cities, (New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Boston) the exclusive power to publish foreign books and to exact any price that they saw fit.

JUDGE FULLER SURPRISED.

Sketch of His Life—How He Received the News of His Nomination.

CHICAGO, April 30.—The nomination of Melville W. Fuller, of Chicago, as Chief Justice of the United States is regardled here with unbounded satisfac-

He looked to the restoration of the Republican party to power—the party which had laid deep and strong the foundation upon which the great tariff structure had been added; a party grown wiser by the assaults made upon the system by its enemies—and it would then be able to reburnish and rebeautify the magnificent structure which was to day the pride and glory of the American citizen. (Applaase.)

Mr. Raynor, of Maryland, did not think that the duty on glass should be reduced to the extent proposed in the bill, but there would be plenty of duty left to make up for all differences in the rate of wages here and abroad, and if any glass manufacturer ant down wages he would be using the bill as a pretense for oppressing his employes. But no matter how the bill came from the Democratic party he would vote for it. [Applause.]

Mr. Nutting regretted to hear the gen-plause.

Mr. Nutting regretted to hear the gen-theman say so; that although there was a wrong in the bill, which would put thousands of laboring men at a dis-advantage, he would vote for it.

Mr. Raynor replied that he would fol low the great party on this great issue. He had no right to look to any industry in his district, when the question before the country was whether a systematic plan of robbery and plunder should be

Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, inquired whether the gentleman did not know that the present Administration had ap-the Standard Oil Trust, but it did not make any difference to him who was connected with it. He did not care whether Republicans or Democrats, silver men or greenbackers, it was the greatest fraud upon the people that had ever been perpetrated.

If the Democratic party struck down monopolies, it would receive, under the leadership of him who led it now (and leadership of him who led it now (and who was as dauntless a champion as patriotism ever possessed, and as fear-less a foe as corruption ever encountered) the renewed fealty of the people. [Applause.] But if it locked hands with monopoly, the hand writing was on the wall, for treachery could never triumph, and a lie could never live. [Applause.]

Mr. Henderson, of Iowa, said that the President had thrown the gauntlet at the feet of protection and stood boldly up as the champion of free trade. Leo XIII., fearing lest in the species of warfare that has been introduced among the Irish in the contests between landlords and tenants, and which is commonly called the "plan of campaign," and in the kind of social interduced among the Irish in the contests between landlords and tenants, and the supreme congregation of the inquisition to subject the matter to a serious and careful examination. Hence the following was proposed to their Eminences, the Cardinals of that congregation:

Is it permissable in disputes between landlords and their tenants in Ireland, to use means known as "the plan of campaign" and "boycotting?" After long and mature deliberation their Eminences unanimously answered in the negative, and their decision was confirmed by the Holy Father on Wedness, which is decision will be readily seen by anyone who applies his mind to consider that a rent agreed on by mutual consent cannot, without violation of a contract, be diminished at the mere will of the tenant, especially when there are tribunalsappointed for settling such controversies and reducing unjust rents within the bounds of equity.

AN OPEN REVOLT.

The Papal Decree Condemned at a Meeting of Nationalists. London, April 30.—A large meeting of Irishmen and Englishmen, including many prominent members of the Liberal and National parties in Parliament, was held to-day at Aldershot. The Pope's decree against the Plan of Campaign and boycotting practices in Ireland was discussed by the speakers.

The decree was strongly condemned, and it was resolved to found a home rule branch of the National League and to cease contributing to Peter's pence.

A SURPRISINGLY GOOD SHOW.

The MacCollin Opera Company in Varney'
"The Musketeers." The audience at the Opera House last night was delighted, and after the Mac-

Collin Opera Company's rendition of "The Musketeers" the universal verdict was that a finer operatic performance has seldom been seen in Wheeling. The has seldom been seen in Wheeling. The merit of the company and the popular prices ought to pack the house at every performance of the week's engagement. The principals are fine vocalists and actors, the chorus strong and well trained, and the dressing and staging pleasing. Mr. MacCollin as the Abbe was inimitable; he is at times so funny that the company has to laugh at him. Messrs, Ford and Stanley as two officers of the Grey Musketeers disguised most of the time as monks, were also perfectly fitted in their roles. Miss Fannie D. Hall was a pretty Simone, and her voice is beautiful. She interpolated a brilliant song, "Twas But a Dream," and won an enthusiastic encore. Miss Mabel Haas as Marie also aroused enthusiasm by her fine singing and natural acting, and Miss Beebe Vining as Louise won all hearts by her piquancy and grace. Miss Curtiss as the Lady Superior was as satisfactory as the others. The ensemble was simply great.

This evening "The Beggar Student." It is safe to say the company will give as fine a rendition of the opera as was ever seen here.

perhaps be well to have some of the other side. The fact is, that is the one thing more to be commended than any other that this present Council has done. When we consider the prominent place that Wheeling occupied in the history of this country a hundred years ago, and that at this present time there is nothing to show for it, the fact is very humiliating. There is not a single relie in any shape or form, not even a book, pertaining to the early settlement of Wheeling—absolutely nothing owned by the city; all gone into oblivion.

It is about time for the city to commence getting together something that will be interesting in the years to come. While other towns and cities in the Ohio valley are having their centennial celebrations and are spending their money lavishly in getting their early history in shape, it doesn't look like the proper thing for this city to be behind all the rest. daughter of Chief Justice Nathan Weston. Melville was fitted for college in Augusta and graduated at Bowdoin in the class of 1853, his classmate being E. J. Phelps, our minister to England. Mr. Fuller, after leaving college, began the study of the law at Bangor.

After attending lectures in the law department of Harvard University, he began the practice of his profession in August in 1886. While waiting for clients he acted as editor of the Agé and won his spurs in journalism. Feeling that his true field of work was the law, and realizing that his native city did not afford that scope for effort which he stood in need of, Mr. Fuller came West and selected Chicago. Here he did not have to wait long for practice. His ability was speedily recognized and properly rewarded. For thirty years he enjoyed a lucrative practice and has won distinction among the foremost at this bar. In 1861 he was elected a member of the State constitutional convention. In 1862, he was chosen to the Legislature, and although a Democrat, running each time in a strong Republican district, he was victorious by a large majority. He was a delegate to the Democratic
